Species: Khaya senegalensis

The african mahogany is an evergreen tree, capable of being deciduous in drier climates. With a widely spreading, rounded crown; it can grow 15 to 30 metres tall. This tree is widely exploited for its important and valuable timber. It is widely used on a commercial scale, particularly in West Africa. Grown as a shade and avenue tree, it is the most beautiful tall tree in the long dry season of the sahelo-guinean regions. The tree has been classified as 'Vulnerable' in the IUCN Red List of Threatened Species(2010).

Tree(s) planted in Project Dassa, Burkina Faso

Le projet « Planter pour la Planète » a été lancé par Madame Wangari Maathai. Au Burkina, nous plantons dans la province du Sanguié en suivant les conseils de l'agroforesterie afin de faire reculer le désert.
